I'm Rosemary Emery and I am running for the Salt Lake City School Board district 4. I was born and raised in New York, went to St Elizabeth College in New Jersey, graduated with a BA in 1969. Upon my husband's return from Vietnam we moved to Albany, NY where I earned my master's degree from SUNY Albany.

I have been teaching Math since 1970; teaching in three different states for a total of thirty-five years. All of these experiences have enriched my life and made me a better teacher and a better candidate for the school board.

Over the years I have been active in professional teacher organizations. There are three important partners in a student's education: the parents, the teachers and the administration. The Salt Lake shared governance model brings the stake holders together to do what is best for the students of our community.

I will work tirelessly for you, your children and your school system. I know firsthand how important a good school system is for everything from employment opportunities to property values. I hope my expertise and my years working within the educational community will earn your vote this November.
